

CALL FOR PAPERS

Title: International Conference on 'Philosophy: Now and Here'

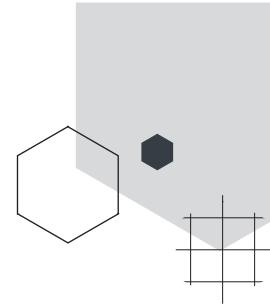

The Department of Philosophy at the University of Chittagong, Bangladesh is delighted to announce its forthcoming golden jubilee celebration in October 2023, marking 50 years of academic excellence and philosophical exploration. As part of this momentous occasion, the department will be hosting an international conference titled "Philosophy: Now and Here." The conference aims to provide a platform for scholars, researchers, and thinkers from around the world to engage in meaningful discussions and present their insights on various philosophical topics. This call for papers invites contributions from diverse perspectives within the five chosen areas of philosophy.

Rationale of the Title

The title "Philosophy: Now and Here" captures the essence of our conference by emphasizing the significance of philosophy in the contemporary world and its relevance to the present context. Philosophy, as an intellectual discipline, plays a crucial role in shaping our understanding of politics, ethics, education, metaphysics, and interdisciplinary studies. By focusing on the present, the conference seeks to explore how philosophy can address the complex challenges and dilemmas faced by societies today. It invites participants to examine the philosophical foundations that underpin the issues of politics, peace, justice, ethics, education, metaphysics, and interdisciplinary perspectives.

Conference Themes and Areas of Philosophy

1. Politics, Peace, and Justice: This theme explores the philosophical dimensions of politics, peace, and justice in today's world. Participants are encouraged to critically analyze and discuss the philosophical theories and frameworks that inform political ideologies, the pursuit of peace, and the quest for justice.
2. Ethics in the Modern World: This theme invites philosophical reflections on the ethical challenges posed by the complexities of the modern world. Researchers are invited to explore ethical theories, moral dilemmas, and ethical decision-making in areas such as technology, globalization, environmental ethics, bioethics, and social justice.
3. Philosophy and Education: The theme of philosophy and education explores the intersection between philosophy and educational practices. Participants are encouraged to delve into philosophical perspectives on educational theories, curriculum development, pedagogical approaches, and the role of philosophy in fostering critical thinking and moral reasoning.

4. Metaphysical Inquiries in the Contemporary World: This theme focuses on metaphysical inquiries in the context of the contemporary world. Scholars are invited to explore philosophical perspectives on the nature of reality, existence, consciousness, mind-body dualism, identity, and metaphysical interpretations of scientific advancements.
5. Philosophy: Interdisciplinary Perspective: This theme aims to highlight the interdisciplinary nature of philosophy and its connections with other fields of study. Participants are encouraged to explore how philosophy intersects with disciplines such as psychology, sociology, anthropology, literature, art, and technology, fostering new insights and approaches.
